Introduction and Overview

The governments of Brazil, Sierra Leone, and Switzerland convened the Pathfinders for Peaceful, Just and Inclusive Societies to fulfill the vision of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development that all people should live in peaceful, just and inclusive societies which are free from fear and violence.

The Pathfinders include member states, international organizations, and major partnerships and networks.

Since our launch a year ago, we have worked together to understand the challenges and the opportunities for delivery of the 2030 Agenda targets for peace, justice and inclusion.

We live in a world where too many people’s lives are shaped by violence, conflict, insecurity, injustice, and exclusion.

Standards of governance must also improve. In all countries, institutions are under pressure and must be strengthened if they are to deliver the Sustainable Development Goals.

It is clear that there can be no sustainable development without peace, and no peace without sustainable development, and that more must be done to protect human rights and gender equality.

But we have a growing understanding of what it will take to build more peaceful, just and inclusive societies, with examples of leadership and commitment in a growing number of countries.

We also know that significant improvements in peace, justice and inclusion will play a catalytic role in the achievement of the 2030 Agenda, with greatest benefits for those who are furthest behind.
This roadmap builds on these examples to provide a first guide for those who are working on implementation.

At its heart are three transformative strategies – the prevention of all forms of violence, an institutional renewal to underpin sustainable development, and action to increase social, economic and political inclusion.

Nine areas of catalytic action are identified. In each of these, delivery can be accelerated over the next five years.

For each action, we have highlighted examples of national implementation, demonstrating the range and scale of innovation that we see around the world.

The roadmap also emphasizes the need for increased evidence, data, learning, and finance, and for a movement that will mobilize partners from all sectors behind a shared vision.

The roadmap is the beginning of our work as pathfinders.

Our eyes are now on the High-level Political Forum in 2019, which will take the theme “empowering people and ensuring inclusiveness and equality.”

This is also the year when leaders from all countries will come together to review progress across all parts of the 2030 Agenda.

By then, we must have taken significant additional steps to tackle fear and violence, and to build just societies that include and empower people.

Together, we can achieve this goal.

International organizations and global partnerships supporting development of the roadmap

Facilitated by the New York University Center on International Cooperation
Fostering Peaceful, Just and Inclusive Societies
In the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, the world’s leaders expressed their determination “to foster peaceful, just and inclusive societies which are free from fear and violence.”

They set ambitious targets for reducing violence in all countries, for ensuring access to justice for all, and for building effective, accountable and inclusive institutions.

The Pathfinders for Peaceful, Just and Inclusive Societies is a group of UN member states, international organizations, global partnerships, and other stakeholders.

It is convened by the governments of Brazil, Sierra Leone, and Switzerland to build the intellectual foundations and alliances that turn the ambition of the SDG targets for peaceful, just and inclusive societies into reality.

The Roadmap for Peaceful, Just and Inclusive Societies focuses on the next five years, and covers all targets for peaceful, just and inclusive societies (SDG16+).

It will help realize the social, economic and environmental ambitions of the 2030 Agenda, while recognizing the contribution sustainable development makes to peace, justice and inclusion.

The roadmap maps out the beginning of a collective journey, providing a guide for decision makers, for funders, and for campaigners.

All countries are invited to become pathfinders, using the roadmap to strengthen their implementation of SDG16+, and to share their leadership and experience in building peaceful, just and inclusive societies.
From SDG16 to SDG16+

The 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development calls for:

Peaceful, just and inclusive societies that provide equal access to justice and that are based on respect for human rights (including the right to development), on effective rule of law and good governance at all levels, and on transparent, effective and accountable institutions.

The agenda pledges to tackle inequality, corruption, poor governance, illicit financial and arms flows, and other factors that give rise to violence and insecurity.

Goal 16 is the main goal for fostering peaceful, just and inclusive societies which are free from fear and violence.

But SDG16 should not be seen in isolation. It has strong links with other goals, in line with the integrated and indivisible nature of the agenda.

In all, 36 targets directly measure an aspect of peace, inclusion, or access to justice, with only a third of these found in SDG16.

We call these the SDG16+ targets.

The SDG16+ targets are strongly linked to all Sustainable Development Goals.

As the 2030 Agenda recognizes, there can be no sustainable development without peace and no peace without sustainable development.

Without peace, justice and inclusion, none of the SDGs can be delivered in full.

Violence and injustice destroy lives and make it inevitable that people and communities will be left behind.

Patterns of exclusion, and the grievances that they feed, undermine societies and may lead to insecurity and violence. Weak institutions and poor governance make it impossible for societies to reach their full development potential.

But social, economic and environmental progress play an equally important role in creating the conditions for peaceful, just and inclusive societies.

Inclusive economic growth and social development reduce the risks of violence and conflict, and help societies to work together for a better future.

Environmental sustainability and resilience are also critical to building peaceful, just and inclusive societies.

The SDG16+ targets for peaceful, just and inclusive societies

SDG16 was not designed to be isolated from other goals. The SDG16+ targets:

- Demonstrate how peace, justice and inclusion are integrated in the 2030 Agenda.
- Strengthen the case for universality, encouraging all countries to take full account of the complex interactions between sustainable development and peace.
- Emphasize factors that entrench inequality between and within countries, with the vulnerable and furthest behind at greatest risk of violence, injustice and exclusion.
- Place a gender and rights perspective at the heart of efforts to build peaceful, just and inclusive societies that is grounded in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and other international human rights treaties.
- Underline the need for international cooperation to deliver the 40% of the SDG16+ targets that have a global or regional dimension.
- Inspire partnerships that bring together those working in all sectors and to deliver all 17 Sustainable Development Goals.

The 2030 Agenda commitment to peaceful, just and inclusive societies is supported by the commitment to inclusive, safe and resilient human settlements in the New Urban Agenda and the focus on prevention and resilience in the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction. The Addis Ababa Action Agenda provides a global framework for financing sustainable development.

The 2030 Agenda, while universal in nature, recognizes that the most vulnerable countries, including countries affected by conflict, face special challenges. SDG16+ contributes to the delivery of all Sustainable Development Goals, and to sustaining peace and peacebuilding, in these countries.
In recent years, many countries have made significant progress towards greater peace, justice and inclusion, but the SDG16+ targets will not be met on current trends.

The Pathfinders for Peaceful, Just and Inclusive Societies have developed a roadmap to address this challenge.

The roadmap focuses on what can be done, over the next five years, to increase ambition and accelerate delivery.

It will inform national and local sustainable development strategies, while helping regional and global actors work together more effectively.

The roadmap is relevant to all countries, reflecting the universality of the 2030 Agenda. Every country faces challenges in delivering the SDG16+ targets, but can contribute to success by sharing with others its knowledge, experience, and best practice.

It focuses attention on vulnerable people and countries, especially those who face the greatest risks of being left behind due to violence and insecurity, injustice and exclusion, and poor governance.

The 2030 Agenda identifies the threat posed to development by conflict, violent extremism, humanitarian disasters, and the forced displacement of people.

The roadmap therefore underlines the importance of meeting the needs of people living in areas affected by the highest levels of violence, or by complex emergencies and crises.

The roadmap is not a recipe. Each country has its own context and priorities, while a growing number of pathfinders are exploring new approaches, models, and tools for building peaceful, just and inclusive societies.

Nor is the roadmap set in stone. The Pathfinders will work together to update and revise it, as a ‘living document’ to guide the growing movement for peaceful, just and inclusive societies.

The roadmap will act as a ‘docking station’, bringing partners together around a common vision, with each partner challenged to increase their commitment to implementation.

It is aimed at:

- Decision makers at all levels and from all sectors who have responsibility for implementing the SDG16+ targets.
- International and regional organizations and multi-stakeholder partnerships that support the achievement of one or more elements of the roadmap.
- Civil society networks and organizations, both as advocates and given the important role they play in frontline delivery.
- Business leaders, given the importance of SDG16+ to their operating environment, and their role in tackling violence and abuse, curbing corruption, and increasing inclusion.
- Research partnerships and networks, ensuring that evidence is generated that will meet the future needs of policymakers.
- Funders, especially those prepared to invest in innovation or committed to building more strategic approaches to peace, justice and inclusion.

Over the coming years, the Pathfinders for Peaceful, Just and Inclusive Societies will promote the roadmap, working with those leading on implementation from across the world.

All member states and other partners are invited to become pathfinders, sharing their experience and learning with others.

Working together as a group, the Pathfinders will demonstrate how to turn the ambition of the SDG16+ targets into reality.
We are determined to foster peaceful, just and inclusive societies which are free from fear and violence.
There can be no sustainable development without peace and no peace without sustainable development.

peace, justice and inclusion create conditions for sustainable development
Transformative Strategies
The targets for peaceful, just and inclusive societies are highly interconnected, both with each other and with the other SDGs. The roadmap sets out cross-cutting strategies that provide the basis for integrated action and partnerships.

At a time of spiralling crisis and unacceptable levels of violence, a new commitment to prevention will provide a platform that allows societies and citizens to live in peace and to prosper.

Institutions have to be reconfigured to meet the challenges that matter most to people. An institutional renewal will underpin goals for people, planet, prosperity and peace.

Many feel excluded from their societies and from globalization. Greater inclusion and empowerment will enable growing numbers of people to work together for a better world.

The strategies reinforce each other. By investing in prevention, transforming institutions, and including and empowering people, we can make sustained progress towards all targets for peaceful, just and inclusive societies, while reaching the poorest, most vulnerable, and those furthest behind.
Transformative strategies

Prevent
Invest in prevention so that all societies and people reach their full potential.

All countries must reduce violence and resolve disputes peacefully, while promoting inclusion and reducing polarization and distrust.

Intensive and targeted forms of prevention are needed if the risks of violence and insecurity are growing.

Even during a crisis, prevention must be a priority, stopping a further deterioration and building foundations for sustainable development.

Renew
Transform institutions so that they can meet aspirations for a more prosperous, inclusive and sustainable future.

The shift to a more sustainable and resilient path requires institutions capable of accelerating progress towards sustainable development.

Good governance should not be seen in isolation, but is a task for all sectors and parts of society.

Flexible approaches are needed to identify and solve the problems that matter most to people, and to reach the furthest behind.

Involve
Include and empower people so that they can fulfill their potential to work for a better future.

Social, economic and political inclusion holds the key to fostering peaceful societies, and to meet the needs of the most vulnerable.

Inclusion is needed for the implementation of all parts of the 2030 Agenda, challenging all sectors to work in more participatory and transparent ways.

Women, children, young people, and excluded groups must be empowered, allowing them to fulfill their potential as active agents of change.
Prevent

Invest in prevention so that all societies and people reach their full potential.

Violence is a threat to all societies. It kills half a million people every year and injures many more. The impact often lasts a lifetime. Survivors of violence are at greater risk of suicide and mental illness. They can find it harder to learn in school, form relationships, and find productive employment.

At a national level, insecurity undermines prosperity, destroys infrastructure, and starves public services of investment. The most disadvantaged communities are hit hardest, with violence deepening poverty and inequality.

To build peaceful, just and inclusive societies, we need a new commitment to preventing all forms of violence, whether it is found in the home, the community, or the wider society.

Prevention is most urgently needed in countries facing the highest risks, where it contributes to sustainable peace and builds the foundations for sustainable development.

But effective prevention must do more than avoid harm. Violence is a symptom of broader failures to address grievances within a society, resolve disputes peacefully, or to respect the rights of women, children, and vulnerable groups.

It also reflects an inability of institutions to guarantee fairer access to opportunities, resources and power, and to identify and respond to risks that could lead to crisis or instability.

All countries must reduce violence and manage disputes peacefully, while actively promoting inclusion and reducing polarization and distrust.

Targeted prevention is needed when grievances and exclusion increase the risk of violence and insecurity, and for those exposed to repeated cycles of violence.

Even during the response to a crisis, prevention must be a priority, stopping a further deterioration and building foundations for recovery.

Effective prevention will:

- Bring political, development and security partners together to identify risks and address them as early as possible.
- Directly target the worst forms of violence, increasing safety for the most affected communities and people.
- Strengthen justice and security institutions so that disputes are managed peacefully.
- Increase inclusion and respond to the grievances that undermine security.
- Protect human rights and support gender equality, and promote a culture of peace and non-violence.

535,000
lives lost to violence every year, plus many more people suffering serious physical and psychological harm.

10%
of people live in countries that experience nearly half of all deaths.

8%
increase in violent deaths by 2030 under a business-as-usual scenario.

65.6 million people who have fled their homes due to conflict and disaster.

20 million

$14.3 trillion
estimated costs (USD) of conflict, plus substantial additional losses from criminal and interpersonal violence.
Renew

Transform institutions so that they can meet aspirations for a more prosperous, inclusive and sustainable future.

The 2030 Agenda is a plan of action for transforming our world, but its goals will only be delivered if we build institutions that are able to accelerate progress towards sustainable development.

All countries face social, economic and environmental challenges that require new and innovative solutions.

Countries have agreed to end poverty and reduce inequalities, while investing in quality health, education and public services that allow people to fulfill their potential.

They have made a commitment to building strong economic foundations, to ensuring that prosperity is shared broadly, and to responding to the demands of rapidly changing markets and technologies.

They must also shift their economies to sustainable patterns of consumption and production, while increasing resilience to climate change, and to other shocks and disasters.

And they must mobilize the trillions of dollars of resources that will be needed to deliver a more sustainable future.

These are all governance challenges. They require an institutional transformation of a scale and ambition that matches the goals themselves. A failure to strengthen governance, meanwhile, will fuel grievances, violence, and conflict.

Flexible approaches are needed to identify and solve the problems that matter most to people, creating space for actors to experiment and learn rapidly from success and failure.

An institutional transformation will:

- Create capacity at the sub-national, national, regional and global levels to identify and solve problems people care about most.
- Stimulate innovation and the ability to tackle new and emerging challenges, while creating platforms for more participatory politics and decision making, and for feedback and learning.
- Increase potential to mobilize finance from all sources – public and private – while using resources efficiently and effectively.
- Support more effective cooperation between countries in the face of shared threats and challenges.
- Equip institutions to reach the furthest behind first, while enabling vulnerable countries to meet their Sustainable Development Goals and to achieve a durable peace.

Growing complexity

- The world population will exceed 8 billion by 2030. A billion more people will live in towns and cities.
- The global economy has more than doubled in size since the agreement of MDGs.
- Technology is driving rapid social and economic changes.

Growing aspirations

- More than 3 billion people have now joined the global middle class.
- Media and social media have dramatically increased scrutiny of governments.
- Young people are increasingly connected across borders.

New opportunities

- Greater diversity of national models and approaches.
- Growing numbers of educated and active citizens.
- Technology offers new tools for managing societies and economies.
Involve

Include and empower people so that they can fulfill their potential to work for a better future.

Across the world, societies must do more to meet the aspirations of their citizens for a better future, and to respond to the disparities of opportunity, wealth and power that act as barriers to sustainable development.

Exclusion and injustice are drivers of violence and insecurity. They also represent a waste of energy and talent.

Few countries fully empower women and girls, while many young people feel unable to make a full contribution to the creation of a better world.

Other groups face entrenched discrimination, whether due to race, color, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth, disability or other status.

Social, economic and political inclusion holds the key to fostering more peaceful societies.

Greater inclusion is essential to defending human rights, to achieving gender equality, and to providing access to justice for all.

It will fulfill the commitment to leaving no-one behind, and have a profound impact on the lives of those who feel they are being failed by their societies.

And it will create more meaningful opportunities for people to shape a more sustainable future, harnessing their energy, insights and creativity.

Inclusive policies and approaches are needed for the implementation of all parts of the 2030 Agenda.

Greater inclusion:

- Challenges all sectors to work in more participatory and transparent ways.
- Must be based on non-discriminatory laws, policies and practices, and political participation for all groups.
- Will provide opportunities for participation in decision making and for active engagement in implementing the 2030 Agenda.
- Should empower women, children, young people, and excluded groups, building social cohesion and allowing them to fulfill their potential as agents for change.
- Has a strong economic dimension, given the need for inclusive growth and greater economic opportunities.
- Should strengthen networks and increase space for civil society.
- Must invest in the infrastructure and technologies that strengthen social cohesion, and offer opportunities for inclusion for those furthest behind.

A crisis of confidence

Survey data shows a crisis of trust in institutions. In a survey of 28 countries, trust in government is low, but businesses and non-governmental organizations also face a trust deficit. Large numbers of people are frightened about the pace of innovation, the speed of globalization, the erosion of social values, and the threat posed by corruption. There is a growing gap in trust between the general public and elites who form the top 10-15%.

Edelman Trust Barometer 2017

Government 41%
Business 52%
NGOs 53%
Media 43%
All Institutions 45%
Elites 60%
The roadmap identifies nine catalytic actions that will help launch the transformation needed to turn the ambition of SDG16+ into reality. In each of these areas, there is strong potential to accelerate delivery based on existing evidence and experience.

Success will contribute to the three transformative strategies and deliver progress on multiple SDG16+ targets. It will build confidence that early results can be delivered, and allow for continued investment in ‘what works’ to take forward implementation.

The catalytic actions focus on the need for scaling up efforts to end violence against women, children and vulnerable groups, and identify the opportunity to reduce urban violence and build safer cities.

Peaceful, just and inclusive societies must reach countries and communities most likely to be left behind, including those worst affected by violence and conflict, while protecting human rights and promoting gender equality at all times.

Legal identity provides the foundation for just and inclusive societies, while legal empowerment will enable people to play a full role as agents of change for a more sustainable future.

More open and responsive governments will be better equipped to deliver the Sustainable Development Goals. A substantial reduction in corruption and illicit flows will make it possible to build more just, inclusive and peaceful societies.
Catalytic actions

1. Scale up violence prevention for women, children, and for vulnerable groups
   We have a growing understanding of what works to prevent violence against women and children, and an obligation to confront modern slavery, human trafficking, child labor, and other forms of abuse.

   Targets
   16.b, 1.b, 4.5, 4.7, 5.1, 5.5, 5.c, 8.5, 8.8, 10.3, 10.4, 10.7

Catalytic actions are not listed in order of priority. Relevant targets are suggested for each action, but the list is not exhaustive.
Scale up violence prevention for women, children, and for vulnerable groups

We have a growing understanding of what works to prevent violence against women and children, and an obligation to confront modern slavery, human trafficking, child labor, and other forms of abuse.

1. Use the UN system-wide Framework to Underpin Action to Prevent Violence against Women to provide guidance for countries and regions as they work to fulfill their commitments to end violence.

2. Support countries’ action to end violence against children, in line with UN agendas and standards, using the INSPIRE strategies developed by the UN, World Bank and other international partners, with the Global Partnership to End Violence Against Children acting as a platform.

3. Increase the number of countries developing and implementing evidence-based national action plans that set ambitious timelines for reducing violence against women and girls, and for tackling specific abuses identified in the 2030 Agenda.

4. Develop a plan of action to eradicate forced labor, modern slavery, human trafficking and child labor, with Alliance 8.7 and other partnerships providing a platform for accelerated action.

5. Strengthen the role of the private sector in ending trafficking and forced labor, through the UN Forum on Business and Human Rights and other bodies.

6. Target those most vulnerable to violence, including people on the move, women and children affected by conflict, and those with disabilities.

7. Increase coordination and links between prevention frameworks for women, children, and vulnerable groups.

Women and children suffer an epidemic of violence, with a third of women and half of children affected globally.

Violence is a central reason why so many women and children are left behind. The impact on health and wellbeing is dramatic, while violence and the fear of violence prevents many women and children from participating fully in their societies.

The rights of women and children to live free from fear and violence are recognized in the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, the Convention on the Rights of the Child, as well as its Optional Protocols, and other human rights instruments.

The 2030 Agenda sets targets for all countries to intensify action to end violence and to fulfill these rights. It also focuses attention on specific forms of abuse, such as child marriage, female genital mutilation, and child labor, and for a renewed effort to end trafficking and modern slavery.

But there is increasingly powerful evidence to show that violence against women and children can be prevented, including through their own active participation and leadership and through the engagement of men and boys.

We have an opportunity to scale up proven policies and programs, while meeting the needs of those affected by violence and protecting them from further victimization.

Prevent
The safety of women and children builds a foundation for peaceful, just and inclusive societies.

Renew
Innovative partnerships for prevention unite all sectors and parts of society.

Involve
Violence prevention allows for meaningful inclusion of those left furthest behind.

- Implementation and enforcement of laws
- Norms and values
- Safe environments
- Parent and caregiver support
- Income and economic strengthening
- Response and support services
- Education and life skills

Sweden

Sweden has the world’s first feminist government and is determined that all women and girls should live free from violence. It was the first country to prohibit corporal punishment and has recently published a roadmap to protect children from trafficking, exploitation and sexual abuse.

Indonesia

In 2016, the Government of Indonesia launched the country’s first National Strategy on the Elimination of Violence against Children. The strategy is complemented by the flagship program called 3ENDS (end trafficking, exploitation against women and children, and end barriers to economic justice for women).

United Kingdom

The UK conducted a ground-breaking prevalence estimate that indicated it was home to 10-13,000 victims of modern slavery. Its Modern Slavery Act, the first legislation of its kind in the world, increased penalties for slave masters, strengthened policing, and placed responsibility on businesses to be transparent about slavery in their global supply chains. Support for victims has been increased and an Independent Anti-Slavery Commissioner appointed. Slavery is a global problem and the Prime Minister has committed the UK to leading a “comprehensive approach to defeating this vile and systematic international business model at its source and in transit.”

2 Build safe, inclusive and resilient cities

Cities can lead efforts to strengthen safety and increase community cohesion, unleashing the innovation needed to deliver the 2030 Agenda. Poorly planned urbanization could create new risks.

Many cities experience very high levels of crime, violence and insecurity, with the most affected communities isolated, stigmatized and starved of investment, opportunities and services.

While most victims of homicide in cities are young men, women and girls experience high levels of violence and abuse, in the home, in public spaces, and when they are travelling to work and school.

Cities also face emerging risks and challenges. If it is poorly planned, rapid urbanization could lead to inadequate and unsafe housing and infrastructure, and the entrenchment of exclusion and inequality.

But some cities have achieved extraordinary increases in public safety, with urban leaders pioneers of innovative approaches to peace, justice and inclusion.

Urban safety requires evidence-based and inclusive strategies that directly reduce levels of crime and violence. These should be combined with longer-term approaches to strengthen communities, build social cohesion, and to increase the effectiveness and accountability of security and justice providers.

This action supports implementation of the New Urban Agenda, in particular the commitment to promote “a safe, healthy, inclusive, and secure environment in cities and human settlements for all to live, work, and participate in urban life without fear of violence and intimidation.”

1. Increase the number of cities that have set targets for reducing violence and build capacity within cities to implement prevention strategies that focus on, and are guided by, people and communities experiencing the highest levels of violence.

2. Implement a comprehensive approach to reducing sexual harassment and violence in public spaces and transport.

3. Increase the preventive impact of urban investments in infrastructure and the built environment; health and education; skills and job creation; and other services as part of a broader commitment to making cities inclusive, safe, resilient and sustainable.

4. Meet the developmental needs of vulnerable young men and women in communities most affected by violence, including informal settlements, while responding to their trauma and protecting them from stigmatization.

5. Strengthen leadership for prevention in cities, drawing on all sectors, and improve engagement between the police and other security and justice institutions and marginalized communities.

6. Finalize, disseminate and support UN system-wide Guidelines on Safer Cities, taking into account existing UN standards on violence and crime prevention.

7. Explore the potential for a new Global Partnership Initiative on Safer Cities, and work with existing networks of mayors and other city leaders to increase learning between cities.
Partnerships and Platforms

The Safe Cities and Safe Public Spaces Global Initiative

With technical support from UN Women, and in collaboration with civil society, donor partners, UN agencies, local authorities, and the private sector, nearly 30 cities across the world are developing and implementing comprehensive programs to prevent and respond to sexual harassment and other forms of sexual violence against women and girls in public spaces that can be assessed for impact.

Global Partnership Initiative on Safer Cities

A new partnership that will bring together existing partnerships and networks, strengthen regional and national forums for public safety, and develop City Labs to promote locally-led experimentation to prevent and reduce violence and crime.

Canada

The Canadian Municipal Network on Crime Prevention brings together municipalities to prevent crime and foster community safety and well-being. The network builds capacity amongst its 18 members, which are home to over 30% of the Canadian population, and provides a forum for the sharing and development of knowledge, expertise, and vision. In partnership with the University of Ottawa, and with financial support and collaboration of the Government of Canada, it is harnessing evidence to prevent crime and victimization, engaging all sectors that are able to tackle to the root causes of crime and violence.

Guatemala

Guatemala City launched its Safe City and Safe Public Spaces Programme in January 2016 in partnership with the Mayor’s Office, grassroots women, the government of Spain, UN agencies and other partners. The program fosters an integrated approach to ensure safe, empowering and sustainable cities and public spaces for women and girls. Following a participatory design process, the program has been incorporated in the municipal plan, while sexual harassment against women in public spaces forms part of the National Policy on Violence against Women and Girls.

Mexico

In 2016, the Government of Mexico established the Mexican Network on Safer Cities, promoting safer and more inclusive cities for all inhabitants. The network aims to improve the quality of public spaces and ensure they are free from crime and violence. It draws on the best evidence on prevention, while generating innovative local solutions, strengthening city partnerships, building links with federal and national administrations, and serving populations in vulnerable situations. Mexico also hosted the global forum on safe cities for women and girls in 2017, while Mexico City has launched the #NoEsDeHombres to tackle sexual harassment on public transport.

Colombia

Colombia’s cities are at the forefront of innovations in citizen security. In 2014, Bogotá became the first city in Latin America to implement Safetipin, a map-based and free Smartphone app which aims to make cities safer for women. The app provides citizens, governments, academia and private sector up-to-date information on perceptions of citizen security. Bogotá and Villavicencio have now announced their participation in the Safe Cities and Safe Public Spaces Global Initiative, joining Medellín City which launched its program in 2015.
The 2030 Agenda recognizes the unique challenges facing the most vulnerable communities and countries, as part of its commitment to reaching the furthest behind first. For hundreds of millions of people, the road to sustainable development is blocked by violence, insecurity and injustice, while their lives are shaped by disparities of opportunity, wealth and power.

Some of these people live in societies that have been, or continue to be, affected by conflict. For them, development is essential to underpin a more sustainable peace, allowing them to benefit from attainment of all parts of the 2030 Agenda.

For all vulnerable countries and communities, risk-informed approaches to development are needed to increase resilience, and tackle exclusion and polarization.

Prevention of violence must be guided and owned by the most vulnerable countries and communities, with support from the international community.

More legitimate and inclusive politics will provide the foundations for improved governance and more sustainable patterns of development.

Global and regional action is important to help create the conditions for peace, justice and inclusion, while international cooperation and finance will support the most vulnerable countries as they invest in peaceful, just and inclusive societies.

Targeted prevention for countries and communities most likely to be left behind

All countries must make an active commitment to prevention, but additional and urgent support is needed for the poorest and most vulnerable countries as they implement the 2030 Agenda.

1. Intensify support to vulnerable countries as they develop their strategies and plans for implementation of the 2030 Agenda.

2. Strengthen analysis to map risks and patterns of exclusion, with mechanisms to inform policymaking and early engagement.

3. Map risks posed to vulnerable countries and communities by organized crime groups, and implement policies to reduce these risks.

4. Implement targeted prevention initiatives to urgently reduce violence in the most vulnerable countries and to address the root causes of conflict.

5. Invest in social, economic and political inclusion, and in service delivery and other policies and programs to address grievances before they escalate into violence.

6. Use national dialogues and processes to support reconciliation and transitional justice, with an enhanced role for women and young people.

7. Support regional and global action to create an enabling environment for sustainable development in countries experiencing high levels of violence and insecurity.

8. Foster partnerships between actors using humanitarian, development and civilian peacebuilding instruments, based on joint and inclusive analysis of the context, with the aim of ensuring full implementation of the 2030 Agenda in the most vulnerable countries.
Since his election to the country’s Supreme Judiciary in March 2016, President Faustin Archange Touadera and his government have formulated and implemented a national reconstruction strategy, the Peace Rehabilitation and Consolidation Plan. The plan aims to reduce instability and prevent violence in order to rebuild institutions, improve the delivery of public services, and create conditions for long-term development. The international community has strongly supported its implementation, in order to stabilize the country, eradicate violence, and create foundations for economic recovery and sustainable human development. The government is counting greatly on more effective support from the international community.

Sri Lanka

Sri Lanka’s Consultation Task Force on Reconciliation Mechanisms was appointed by the Prime Minister. Its approach was victim-centered and all members were drawn from civil society. The Task Force undertook a wide-ranging consultation to determine transitional justice mechanisms for truth, justice, reparations and non-recurrence. Based on over 7,000 submissions from the public, it handed its final report to the government, which is currently studying it for implementation.

Central African Republic

Since his election to the country’s Supreme Judiciary in March 2016, President Faustin Archange Touadera and his government have formulated and implemented a national reconstruction strategy, the Peace Rehabilitation and Consolidation Plan. The plan aims to reduce instability and prevent violence in order to rebuild institutions, improve the delivery of public services, and create conditions for long-term development. The international community has strongly supported its implementation, in order to stabilize the country, eradicate violence, and create foundations for economic recovery and sustainable human development. The government is counting greatly on more effective support from the international community.

Timor-Leste

Timor-Leste has developed a roadmap for the implementation of the 2030 Agenda, based on its National Strategic Development Plan 2011-2030, which charts a clear path to move from transition to resilience by 2030. The plan is distinctive in including a very strong focus on effective institutions, alongside a commitment to international cooperation and intensive exchange with other countries.

The g7+ is an intergovernmental voluntary organization bringing together countries that are either facing active conflict or have recent experience of conflict and fragility. Its members recognize that peace and resilience are the pre-cursors for development and are committed to tailoring the SDGs to their needs. They are pioneering cooperation between vulnerable countries and emphasize the need for support from development partners that is predictable, flexible and appropriately tailored to context, to effectively contribute to country-owned transitions to peace and resilience.

4 Increase justice and legal empowerment

We have an opportunity to promote the rule of law and increase access to justice in all countries, with a substantial impact on the most vulnerable and furthest behind.

雠 Prevent
Grievances are addressed, reducing the risk of violence and tackling impunity.

 criticised
Justice and security institutions become more accessible and responsive.

焰 Involve
People can claim their rights and entitlements, allowing them to reach their full potential.

Most people are unable to count on the full protection of the law. While many countries have taken steps to increase access to justice, universal access is out of reach on current trajectories. We can accelerate progress if we:

■ Understand why and how women and men seek justice, and whether they feel they are treated fairly when they seek a legal remedy.

■ Empower them to use and shape the law in ways that remove obstacles to their development, and that of their families and their communities.

■ Focus on the needs of victims and witnesses of violent crimes within the justice system, in particular women, children and vulnerable groups.

■ Enable people to access justice for civil matters, including those related to land and property, family law, health, and labor.

■ Support alternative resolution mechanisms to solve disputes outside the formal justice system where possible, allowing courts to concentrate on more serious cases.

■ Ensure full judicial independence and transparency, and make justice and security institutions more inclusive, accountable, transparent, and effective.

The justice sector has long been neglected and underfunded. However, this is an area of growing innovation and one where many countries are showing leadership.

1. Use regular surveys to capture data on legal needs, rates of victimization, and confidence in justice and security institutions.

2. Develop a strategy for improving access to legal aid and assistance for civil and criminal matters, building on the UN Principles and Guidelines on Access to Legal Aid and the UNDP/UNODC Global Study on Legal Aid.

3. Increase the capacity of justice and security institutions to operate in ways that are informed by the evidence on violence prevention, building trust and legitimacy, and increasing accountability.

4. Extend and improve services provided at the community level, while increasing the use of mobile courts, informal dispute resolution mechanisms, and other cost effective approaches, in line with international human rights standards.

5. Strengthen administrative justice, including access to redress and complaint mechanisms, and facilitate people’s ability to claim their rights related to health, education, land, and natural resources.

6. Support transitional justice processes to secure truth, justice, reparations, and guarantees of non-recurrence for victims of conflict or large scale human rights violations, and invest in efforts to prevent recurrence.

7. Make greater use of the Open Government Partnership (OGP) and other national, regional and global platforms to strengthen justice and security institutions, and to increase legal empowerment, while creating tools and resources to support those working on legal empowerment.
Namati

Partnerships and Platforms

Guatemala

The International Commission Against Impunity in Guatemala (CICIG) is a Guatemalan initiative established as a joint effort with the UN to assist state institutions in the investigation, prosecution and punishment of persons responsible for, or associated with, criminal structures. From 2007 to 2017, it has helped dismantle corruption networks that involved high ranking public officials and members of the private sector. CICIG has proposed measures that will strengthen legislation and institutions, as the government works to ensure the justice sector can fulfill its mandate to provide justice for all in Guatemala.

The Netherlands

In the Netherlands, access to justice is facilitated by legal aid centers, established in most municipalities across the country, that offer professional, free, legal advice. Solutions to problems with a legal dimension can also be sought through an innovative online platform called ‘Guide to Justice’, which provides citizens with tools to efficiently and affordably handle their legal issues, such as divorce, at their own pace. The Netherlands also continues to support the investigation and prosecution of mass atrocity and other serious international crimes, and is actively engaged in the initiative for a multilateral treaty on mutual legal assistance and extradition for such crimes.

Argentina

Argentina has over 80 centers providing comprehensive legal and community services to disadvantaged communities. Each center has a team of lawyers, psychologists, social workers and community mediators. Some centers also provide access to social protection services while cooperating with state agencies such as the National Administration of Social Security. Also, Public Defenders Offices, Law Schools, and Bar Associations help provide pro bono legal representation for civil cases not usually taken by private lawyers. The network aims to support 400,000 people in 2017 and is complemented by the El Estado de tu Barrio (State in your Neighborhood) program.

Sierra Leone

Sierra Leone has increased its efforts to build a justice system that meets the needs of the people and underpins the country’s future development. It has targeted excluded groups through the establishment of a Legal Aid Board, the use of mobile courts in areas without permanent legal structures, and by strengthening non-formal justice systems. Delays have been cut and the Ministry of Justice is committed to increasing financing, and to ensuring that people understand their rights and how the legal system works.
The 2030 Agenda presents governments with an opportunity to demonstrate that they can deliver the transformative change required to implement all 17 Sustainable Development Goals.

Success requires re-imagining the role of government, an openness to new ideas and approaches, a constant focus on leaving no-one behind, and increased responsiveness to citizens’ aspirations for the future.

Building on their experience with the Millennium Development Goals, governments have begun the process of strengthening their national development strategies, increasing participation in decision making, and mobilizing partnerships and resources needed to respond to the scope of the agenda.

Universal platforms provide opportunities for governments to make ambitious commitments and to work together to strengthen institutions. The Open Government Declaration has been signed by 75 countries, with action plans allowing governments to work with citizens to set priorities for reforms that will allow a country to tackle its most urgent challenges.

Strengthened collaboration is needed between central government, subnational authorities, and local government, allowing for decentralized responses that deliver results for people in their communities.

A focus is also needed on building effective, accountable and transparent institutions in the states with the weakest capacity, including those vulnerable to shocks, disasters and conflict.

1. Promote the sharing of experience between countries on institutional arrangements for implementing the SDGs, increasing capacity for the implementation of the 2030 Agenda.

2. Through the UN Committee of Experts on Public Administration and other bodies, develop principles and guidance on how responsible and effective governance will underpin the 2030 Agenda.

3. Support the Open Government Partnership and other relevant partnerships as they align their strategies to the 2030 Agenda and as their members raise ambition and make new commitments to deliver.

4. Bolster resources and capacities of local government, as part of broader efforts to localize the 2030 Agenda, including by learning from the pioneers taking part in the OGP pilot program for cities and subnational governments.

5. Recognize, and strengthen, the role played by public servants in developing effective, accountable and transparent institutions.

6. Support parliaments to play a full role in implementing the SDGs, while strengthening independent audit and other oversight institutions.

7. Support the rebuilding of core government functions in countries as they emerge from conflict, and offer flexible support for country-owned transitions to resilience and the next stage of development.

Commitment to open and responsive government

The 2030 Agenda provides a platform for building effective, accountable, and transparent institutions, and for increasing their capacity to meet people’s needs and respect their rights.

.prevent Institutions have increased capacity to prevent violence and manage risks.

.renew Governments better able to deliver the transformational vision of the 2030 Agenda.

.involve Leads to greater participation and more inclusive partnerships.
Partnerships and Platforms

Georgia

Georgia is committed to bringing government as close to people as possible and to innovative approaches to the design and delivery of public services. Reform priorities include the rule of law, introduction of e-governance, the fight against corruption, promotion of open governance, transparency of government decisions, and increasing the proximity and availability of public services.

Georgia’s Public Service Halls and Community Centers are the hubs of public services, and operate in major cities as well as in small villages across the country. This ensures fast, efficient and comfortable delivery of up to 400 public services on a one-stop-shop basis.

Effective Institutions Platform

An alliance of over 60 countries and organizations that support country-led and evidence-based policy dialogue, knowledge sharing and peer learning on public sector management and institutional reform.

Open Government Partnership

OGP aims to improve the quality of governance, as well as the quality of services that citizens receive. 75 OGP participating countries and 15 subnational governments have made over 2,500 commitments to make their governments more open and accountable. Georgia will become the lead chair of the OGP in September 2017.

The Netherlands

The Netherlands promotes transparency and responsiveness through the institution of national and municipal ombudspersons. The ombudsperson is an independent expert mandated to investigate complaints against municipal or national governmental authorities, services or officials. Investigative reports are made public and are also sent to the government authority in question. In some instances, the ombudsperson can play a mediator role between the citizen and the government. There is also an ombudsperson specifically for children.

Brazil

Brazil’s commitment to open government is illustrated by measures promoted by the Ministry of Transparency, Oversight and Comptroller General, including the Transparency Portal, the open data policy, and the involvement of civil society in the elaboration of open government action plans. The Brazilian Federal Court of Accounts has conducted a pilot audit to assess institutional capacity at all levels of government to implement the Agenda, encouraging institutions to take a strategic approach to implementation, and to be accountable for successes and failures. It is now working with other similar institutions in the region to develop the first regional picture of preparedness for SDG implementation.

Argentina

The Buenos Aires City government aims to promote transparency through the Open Government Partnership. This initiative is the key framework in channeling reforms and promoting changes in the public agenda. Initiatives such as the open budget, open procurement and open public works, resulted from the direct or indirect involvement of Buenos Aires in the international OGP community and from a close collaboration with Madrid – another OGP city. Buenos Aires’ open government program aims at building effective, accountable and transparent institutions, and at increasing its capacity to meet citizen needs, specifically with regard to the efficient delivery of public services.
Corruption weakens institutions, undermines growth and erodes the fabric of society. It is linked to organized crime, threatening public security, while police corruption and corruption in the justice system undermine institutions that should protect people from violence.

Corruption increases exclusion and has a serious impact on human rights. It is linked to gender-based violence, including through the abuse of authority for sexual exploitation.

Governments have primary responsibility to reduce corruption, but they should work with business and civil society, and draw on other institutions such as parliaments, the judiciary, and independent audit institutions.

Countries must also work together to reduce the flow of illicit finance across borders. This means disrupting regional and global criminal networks, while combating the tax evasion that sees wealth flow from poorer to richer countries.

When illicit arms flow across borders, they increase violence and empower criminal and terrorist groups.

The illicit flows of drugs, wildlife and natural resources also undermine sustainable development, with the same criminal groups often involved in the trafficking of people.

For all forms of corruption and illicit flows, greater sharing of best practice will help countries to develop and implement innovative solutions and new approaches.

1. Increase national efforts and international cooperation to expose corruption, punish the corrupt and support those who have suffered from corruption, and drive out the culture of corruption, wherever it exists.

3. Strengthen global cooperation to tackle all forms of illicit financial flows, including global tax avoidance, through the Committee of Experts on International Cooperation in Tax Matters, the UN system, international financial institutions, G77 and China, G20, OECD and other platforms.

4. Accelerate progress, in an inclusive way, towards the goal of the Action Plan on Base Erosion and Profit Shifting, of reducing the misalignment between corporate profits and the location of real economic activity, and improving the collection of global tax revenues in countries of all income levels.

5. Increase efforts to combat money laundering and recover stolen assets through relevant international treaties, the Stolen Asset Recovery Initiative, and the Global Forum on Asset Recovery.

6. Move from punitive policies to an integrated and balanced strategy to address and counter the world drug problem, centered on justice and human rights.

7. Work towards universalization of legally binding arms control instruments and follow through on commitments made by member states in the UN Programme of Action on Small Arms, the UN Firearms Protocol, and the Arms Trade Treaty, while using the International Small Arms Control Standards to support the delivery of SDG16+.

Republic of Korea

Korea’s Anti-Corruption and Civil Rights Commission sets national anti-corruption policy guidelines, promotes anti-corruption capacity building and education, identifies corruption risks, and advises corruption-prone institutions in the public sector. The Commission has the Anti-Corruption Initiative Assessment as a tool for evaluating how institutions are implementing measures to prevent corruption and whether those measures are effective. The assessment has been conducted annually since 2002 and now covers more than 250 public institutions. Korea has taken further steps in sharing its best practices on anti-corruption with countries around the world.

Switzerland

Switzerland took a proactive approach and became a pioneer in recovering and returning stolen assets to developing countries. It passed a new comprehensive legislative framework to identify, freeze and return stolen assets, which entered into force in July 2016. Worldwide, of the $5 billion of illicit assets restored to developing countries in recent years, more than $2 billion has been returned by Switzerland alone. Switzerland sees this as an important contribution towards the achievement of SDG16+.

Qatar

Demonstrating its strong commitment to preventing corruption and promoting transparent and accountable governance, Qatar, in partnership with the United Nations, established the first regional Rule of Law and Anti-Corruption Center in 2011. The Center has significantly increased awareness of corruption in the region. It acts as a hub for training on anti-corruption and the rule of law, the exchange of experiences and expertise through strategic partnerships, and for building institutional capacity to meet international standards and national needs. In 2016, Qatar established the His Highness Sheikh Tamim bin Hamad Al Thani Anti-Corruption Excellence Award in 2016 to showcase innovative approaches toward the fight against corruption from around the world.

Mexico

On July 19, 2017, the National Anti-Corruption System began formal implementation. Its combination of new laws, institutional coordination, and citizen participation represent one of the world’s most robust and complete frameworks for fighting corruption. It is supported by a strong legal framework based on the reform of 14 articles of the Mexican Constitution and on seven secondary laws approved in July 2016. A Coordination Committee brings together authorities from all levels of government. The system will be replicated through 32 anti-corruption local systems in every federal state.

Stolen Asset Recovery Initiative (StAR)

A partnership between the World Bank Group and the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) that supports international efforts to end safe havens for corrupt funds. StAR works with developing countries and financial centers to prevent the laundering of the proceeds of corruption and to facilitate more systematic and timely return of stolen assets.

Tax Justice Network

An independent international network dedicated to high-level research, analysis and advocacy in the area of international tax and the international aspects of financial regulation to map, analyze and explain the role of tax and the harmful impacts of tax evasion, tax avoidance, tax competition and tax havens.
Legal identity and birth registration for all

Universal birth registration and robust legal identity for all will help people secure their rights and provide a foundation for delivering the 2030 Agenda to those who are furthest behind.

Legal identity and birth registration allow people to claim their rights within their communities and societies, and provide data that is essential for the planning and provision of services.

People who are deprived of proof of identity are excluded from formal markets and are vulnerable to violence, abusive practices such as child marriage, and discrimination. People with disabilities and non-citizens are especially disadvantaged in the registration process.

More births are now being registered, with some countries showing major improvements that can be made in a decade with sufficient political will and investment.

Increasingly, countries recognize the need for birth registration not to be seen in isolation, but to be considered as part of a civil registration and vital statistics system that also records deaths and causes of deaths, and other events such as marriage and divorce.

Recent years have seen a wave of innovation in legal identity, as countries have moved from paper-based to digital identity systems, and have begun to use mobile technology.

This allows more people to participate in their societies and economies. Governments have also used the new systems to provide cash transfers and increase access to public services, and to make their programs more targeted and less wasteful.

1. Strengthen civil registration systems so they provide quality data on births and other vital statistics, as part of a strategic approach to national health data systems for the delivery of the SDGs.

2. Use the Roadmap for Health Measurement and Accountability (2015-2030) to support national leadership and ownership, and to provide a platform for international support where appropriate.

3. Drawing on the Global Civil Registration and Vital Statistics Scaling up Investment Plan (2015-2024), mobilize the additional finance from international sources needed to finance progress towards universal coverage in 75 priority countries.

5. Use digital identity systems to strengthen the social safety net, increase access to services, and improve governance, making a broad contribution to the implementation of the SDGs.

6. Manage risks posed by identity systems, using the Principles on Identification for Sustainable Development to ensure systems are universal, accessible, robust, secure, responsive and sustainable, and they protect privacy and user rights.

7. Strengthen capacity to analyze and use data from registration systems for policymaking and monitoring purposes.
The Health Data Collaborative

An inclusive partnership of international agencies, governments, philanthropies, donors and academics, with the common aim of improving the availability, quality and use of data for local decision making and tracking progress towards the health-related Sustainable Development Goals. The Collaborative developed the Roadmap for Health Measurement and Accountability.

ID4D Partnership Platform

Aims to fill the global identification gap by bringing together the World Bank, UN agencies, other development partners, think tanks and academics, regional bodies, private sector associations and standards bodies. An associated Multi-Donor Trust Fund has been established with a catalytic contribution from the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation.

Brazil

Brazil has reduced the number of unregistered births from over 17% in 2004 to 1% in 2014. The government is committed to universal registration, allowing all Brazilians to claim their rights as citizens. It has run campaigns to increase awareness and to reach families in all parts of the country. A digital register was launched in 2014 covering births, deaths and marriages, allowing data to be shared and used in a secure environment. Brazil is now focused on reaching the 1% who remain unregistered, tailoring services to indigenous peoples and other priority groups, and making it easier to register a birth later in a child’s life.

Sierra Leone

The President of Sierra Leone launched the National Civil Registration Authority in May 2017 to develop a multi-purpose identity card and provide a national identification number to all citizens and non-citizens resident in the country. The National Civil Registry Project has supported the move towards harmonizing government databases and continues to help build the sustainable institutions that can manage a high technology, national identity register and card-issuance system on a permanent basis. The government is committed to ensuring identity cards meet international standards, with cards meeting ECOWAS standards that will allow for the movement of people across the region.

Liberia

As a result of years of civil war, very few of Liberia’s children have their births registered. The Ministry of Health and Social Welfare, with support from the international community, aims to increase birth registration to 90% through the Universal Birth Registration program. The government is making registration much easier for parents and explaining to them the benefits it will bring to their children. All birth certificates are free, while mobile technology allows travelling teams to reach remote communities. Efforts are also being made to register older children who missed out in the months after their birth.

India

India is enrolling its entire population in Aadhaar, the world’s most sophisticated biometric identity system, giving each Indian a unique identification number. So far, a total of 1.171 billion Indian citizens have been issued Aadhaar cards. Aadhaar allows the government to target welfare services and has had a dramatic impact on financial inclusion, with an additional 250 million bank accounts opened. This has allowed the government to disburse $25 billion to 329 million beneficiaries through direct benefit transfers, significantly enhancing the efficiency of government programs.
Empower people as agents of change

The 2030 Agenda drew on one of the largest ever global consultations, with the MYWorld survey gathering inputs from 7 million people. This has created enormous expectations that people will continue to play an active role in the delivery of the 2030 Agenda.

While there is some evidence of a new commitment to inclusion and increasing grassroots engagement, rising nationalism and inequitable patterns of globalization are reducing the policy space for sustainable development.

Civic space is shrinking in many countries and, at local levels, there is often a lack of capacity for engagement, especially in the most marginalized communities. Many groups face daunting barriers that prevent their participation, whether due to their age, sex, ethnicity, disability or migration status.

To counter these trends, all societies should invest in institutions and processes that foster social, political, and economic cohesion, and allow for responsive, inclusive, participatory, and representative decision making.

They need to provide meaningful opportunities for citizen engagement, responding to demand for change from the grassroots, and allowing citizens to play an active role in developing policy, and designing and delivering public services.

1. Assess models for participation in sustainable development and make recommendations on context-specific strategies and best practice, with an emphasis on the role of women, young people, and marginalized groups.

2. Invest in programs that demonstrate how communities can participate in the development of policy and in strengthening public services.

3. Use Open Government action plans to deepen citizen-led governance, enhance civic participation and accountability, and promote representation in institutions.

4. Focus on the role of frontline public servants – such as teachers, health workers, and the police – in delivering accountable and responsive services.

5. Use digital tools to enable new forms of direct participation in public life, drawing on the insights and expertise of young people.

6. Advance women’s participation and leadership in their societies, including as peacebuilders and in crisis settings.

7. Increase opportunities for youth leadership and activism, enabling children and young people to participate in decision making and to hold their leaders to account, while gathering data on their participation.

8. Invest in civic education, and in the knowledge and skills needed to promote sustainable development.

9. Protect and enhance civic space and make the case for citizen engagement.
Tunisia

After the Tunisian revolution in 2010-2011, the Tunisian National Dialogue Quartet led an inclusive national dialogue with political parties, developing a roadmap to secure a peaceful democratic transition. The Quartet brought together four organizations from civil society: the Tunisian General Labor Union, the Tunisian Confederation of Industry, Trade and Handicrafts, the Tunisian Human Rights League, and the Tunisian Order of Lawyers. The Quartet was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 2015 for a “decisive contribution to the building of a pluralistic democracy.”

Afghanistan

The Citizens’ Charter National Priority Program is the first inter-ministerial program in Afghanistan to deliver core infrastructure and social services to rural and urban communities through citizen participation. The Community Development Councils (CDCs), democratically elected representatives in the community level, will work with various ministries and sub-national governments to deliver development projects for their communities. Each CDC requires 50% participation by women. Through partnerships with its citizens, the program aims to improve transparency and accountability of the government.

The Transparency, Accountability & Participation Network

A global network of over 300 civil society organizations (CSOs) working around SDG16+ and 2030 Agenda accountability. TAP has developed capacity building resources for national-level civil society including the Goal 16 Advocacy Toolkit and Advocacy: Justice and the SDGs, and works to help coordinate civil society to report on SDG16+ in their countries.

The Community of Democracies

The Community of Democracies is an international organization that drives the global democracy agenda through common action. Since its establishment in 2000, the Community has brought together governments, civil society and the private sector in the pursuit of a common goal: supporting democratic rules and strengthening democratic norms and institutions around the world.

Czech Republic

Czech towns, cities, and regional governments are fostering participation of citizens in public decision making, providing people with a sense of ownership of their community, increasing quality of life, and increasing the sustainability and cost effectiveness of public services. The city of Kolín in Central Bohemia, for example, uses an online portal to allow citizens to alert the mayor to problems and to come up with new ideas on how to improve their city. It is also bringing the smart city concept into reality by using technology for clever parking solutions, waste management, and smart payments for school children.
Respect all human rights and promote gender equality

Early action on rights and equality is needed to build peaceful, just and inclusive societies, and to deliver the people-centered vision of the 2030 Agenda.

- Prevent: Rights and gender equality increase resilience and provide a focus for prevention.
- Renew: Legislation, policies and institutions are better able to protect rights and promote gender equality.
- Involve: Builds capacity and channels for participation among groups that are most likely to be excluded.

The Sustainable Development Goals seek to realize the human rights of all and to achieve gender equality and the empowerment of all women and girls, including through the engagement of men and boys.

By taking a rights-based approach, and mainstreaming a gender perspective, progress towards peaceful, just and inclusive societies will be based on international human rights standards, strengthening the capacity of people to claim their rights, and of governments and other duty bearers to protect and promote them.

A focus on rights and gender equality will help tackle grievances, while ensuring women play a full role in building a sustainable peace, and that human and women’s rights defenders are supported and protected.

The Universal Periodic Review of the Human Rights Council, and other mechanisms of the international human rights system, provide a model for translating a focus on rights and gender equality into practical actions that will lead to tangible improvements in people’s lives. Recommendations are already strongly linked to SDG16+.

The United Nations has developed a shared framework that will help member states implement the 2030 Agenda as an “agenda for equality,” while the Commission on the Status of Women continues to develop recommendations for the gender-responsive implementation of the 2030 Agenda.

1. Maximize the potential of the United Nations human rights system to support implementation of the 2030 Agenda, providing countries with opportunities to understand and overcome challenges in the field of human rights, including by encouraging member states to extend a standing invitation to special procedures mandate holders.

2. In collaboration with the United Nations, implement a shared framework for putting equality and non-discrimination at the heart of sustainable development, with a focus on the inequalities that disproportionately affect particular groups.

3. Strengthen national human rights mechanisms and institutions, building on the work of the Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions, so these mechanisms and institutions become a focus for building peaceful, just and inclusive societies.

4. Reform security and justice institutions to ensure they are non-discriminatory, representative of the population, and capable of protecting human rights.

5. Address structural barriers to women’s economic empowerment, building on the conclusions of the Commission on the Status of Women, and the agenda for action developed by the High-Level Panel on Women’s Economic Empowerment.

6. Actively reach out to people with disabilities, to refugees and migrants, and to other marginalized groups, empower them, and support their full participation in public life.
Canada

Through the Private Sponsorship of Refugees Program, Canadian citizens and civil society have resettled 275,000 refugees since 1979 (in addition to those resettled by the government). In recent years, 14,000 Syrian refugees have been supported in their new home. Sponsors provide financial backing for a year, and help refugees access services, find jobs, and connect to the community. Other countries are now considering private sponsorship mechanisms as part of their response to the global refugee crisis.

Liechtenstein

Liechtenstein promotes the inclusion of migrants and refugees through innovative language training. ‘Liechtenstein Languages’ is a non-profit language course project designed to teach German or other languages to migrants and refugees with a method inspired by early language acquisition. The courses are gender-inclusive and enable participants to communicate on a basic level within four weeks. The project also trains teachers and social workers, without any teaching background, how to teach a language course. To date, more than 150 trainers have undergone training and more than 3,000 people have been introduced to the German language.

Colombia

Colombia has used its peace process to empower women and include them in decision making at all levels of society. The justice system is now a leader in gender equality, with the National Gender Commission of the Judicial Branch of Colombia created in 2008. Major achievements include the mainstreaming of equality and non-discrimination within the highest courts of justice, training of judges and other officials on gender equality, and development of a gender observatory for the judicial branch. Internationally, Colombia is a champion for gender empowerment, and is leading efforts to shine a spotlight on the representation of women in the UN.

Sierra Leone

Sierra Leone’s Human Rights Commission was established in 2004 to protect and promote human rights throughout the country. It helped implement the recommendations of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission and has supported the government as it fulfills its obligations under international human rights treaties. The Commission’s strategic plan for 2016-2020 sets out ten priority goals, including combatting discrimination, effective complaints handling, human rights education and training, and ensuring multi-national corporations and other businesses protect rights. The Commission has also worked to improve the conditions of prisoners, revealing food shortages, lack of water and sanitation, overcrowding, prolonged pre-trial detention, and other abuses of rights.

Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions

The international association of national human rights institutions from all parts of the world. Working with UNDP and OHCHR to support NHRIs, and to strengthen links between the 2030 Agenda and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and international human rights treaties.
Enablers
The enablers underpin progress towards the targets for peaceful, just and inclusive societies.

A strategic approach is needed to provide decision makers with evidence and data to support effective implementation. Long-term investment is needed to track progress, scale up proven and promising interventions, and understand the challenges facing the most vulnerable countries.

The SDG16+ targets will not be delivered on current trends. Increased finance is needed to match the ambition of the 2030 Agenda vision. This means strengthening the case for investment in order to mobilize funding from all sources, both public and private.

The universality of the 2030 Agenda offers new opportunity for learning and exchange. Platforms must increase the use of evidence in policymaking and allow countries to share experiences with each other. A small number of grand challenges can be used as a focus for ambition and learning.

Effective communications and advocacy will build the multi-stakeholder movement for peaceful, just and inclusive societies. This will increase political will, while drawing on the insights and expertise of children, young people, and those who are furthest behind.
Enablers

Evidence and data
- Take a strategic approach to strengthening data for the SDG16+ global indicator framework
- Strengthen national statistical capacity and improve reporting mechanisms
- Identify evidence gaps and needs, and develop research agendas that will inform policymaking

Finance
- Increase understanding of the costs of inaction and the benefits of action
- Develop a case for investment to implement the catalytic actions identified in this roadmap
- Increase investment in delivering the SDG targets for peaceful, just and inclusive societies

Communication, advocacy and movement building
- Increase political leadership for peace, justice and inclusion
- A movement for peaceful societies
- A movement for justice and inclusion
- Strengthen the norms and values underpinning peaceful, just and inclusive societies

Learning and exchange
- Intensify cooperation between pathfinder countries, highlighting successes and leadership
- Strengthen universal networks and platforms for learning
- Report progress and communicate success in fostering peaceful, just and inclusive societies
- Use high-profile ‘grand challenges’ to increase ambition and as a focus for learning
Delivery of the SDG16+ targets requires increased investment in the knowledge, data and evidence that is needed to inform decision making.

For peaceful societies:
- Improved data on the prevalence of different forms of violence is making the scale of violence visible to decision makers and to the public.
- Understanding is growing of the factors that increase the risk of violence, and of those that protect individuals, communities, and societies and make them more resilient.
- There is increased evidence for how violence can be prevented, although the evidence base remains fragmented and is limited in its geographic coverage.

Priorities are to demonstrate effective prevention at scale, and what works in areas that experience the highest levels of violence, but have limited resources for implementation.

Data and evidence is also needed to understand grievances and how to respond to them, and to map the indirect impacts of insecurity on people’s lives.

In the area of justice:
- It remains hard to quantify levels of legal exclusion, discrimination, and the denial of rights, although survey data offers growing insights into levels of corruption and impunity.
- Research is beginning to augment the case for how to strengthen the rule of law and provide access to justice for all.
- An action-oriented research agenda is urgently needed to support the delivery of SDG16.3 and the other targets for just societies.

For inclusive societies:
- The data demonstrates that the success of the 2030 Agenda relies on a rapid improvement in governance, especially in the most vulnerable countries.
- We lack data to monitor trends in social, economic and political inclusion, despite the urgent need to address worrying levels of polarization and grievances.
- There is growing experimentation and innovation in the field of governance and institutional development, as research focuses on delivery methodologies, adaptive and problem solving approaches, and greater partnership with citizens in decision making.

A strategic approach to data must span all SDG16+ indicators, developing global and national baselines, and steadily increasing the proportion of countries that have the data they need to measure progress. Data must be disaggregated for vulnerable groups and those at risk of being left behind.

National statistical networks and strategies must be strengthened, especially in vulnerable countries, while the partnership for data should draw on the skills and expertise of civil society, academia, and the private sector.

Non-government platforms such as the SDG16 Data Initiative can play an important role in raising awareness of data sources that complement the official indicators.

Knowledge and research networks are needed to develop and implement research strategies, and to strengthen the link from evidence to policy.
Take a strategic approach to strengthening data for the SDG16+ global indicator framework

- Support the plan for the implementation of the global indicators developed by the Inter-agency Expert Group on SDG Indicators, and its workstream on data disaggregation.
- Fill data gaps and improve international comparability for indicators with clear methodologies, recognizing the role as a focal point of the High-level Group for Partnership, Coordination and Capacity-Building for statistics for the 2030 Agenda.
- Implement standards that allow for the systematic production and comparison of data, including the International Classification of Crime for Statistical Purposes and the International Classification of Diseases.
- As a priority, harmonize and strengthen homicide estimates at country, regional and global level (UNODC, WHO), and other data that quantify trends in levels of violence.
- Accelerate action to develop and publish global estimates for indicators on conflict-related deaths (OHCHR), illicit financial flows (UNODC), forced labor and human trafficking (ILO, UNODC), and migration policies (DESA, IOM).
- Develop methodologies that can be used to strengthen the indicator framework in 2018 and 2019, focusing on areas of targets that are poorly covered (in particular, access to civil justice, trust in public institutions, political inclusion, and violence against migrants) and prepare for the comprehensive review of indicators by the Statistical Commission in 2020.

Strengthen national statistical capacity and improve reporting mechanisms

- Support the Cape Town Global Action Plan for Sustainable Development Data as a focus for strengthening national statistical systems, so that they can collect, process, analyze, and disseminate disaggregated data on peaceful, just and inclusive societies.
- Implement the 2016-2020 roadmap for the development of a handbook on governance statistics for national statistical offices, as developed by the Praia Group on Governance Statistics.
- Strengthen and harmonize national survey data for the SDG16+ indicators and develop a module for inclusion in ongoing household surveys, drawing on the work of the Intersecretariat Working Group on Household Surveys.
- Deliver universal civil registration and vital statistics systems (see catalytic action 7).

Identify evidence gaps and needs, and develop research agendas that will inform policymaking

- Continue to map the strengths and weaknesses of the evidence for implementing the SDG16+ roadmap.
- Establish research priorities for the prevention of violence, building on the recent priority setting exercise conducted by the WHO-led Violence Prevention Alliance, on the forthcoming UN-World Bank flagship report on the prevention of conflict, and on the work of What Works to Prevent Violence against Women Programme, the Know Violence in Childhood global learning initiative, the Understanding Children’s Work inter-agency research partnership, the Rights Lab (on modern slavery), and other research networks.
- Develop a joint research agenda on access to justice.
- Establish research priorities for governance and inclusion through the work of the Research Consortium on the Impact of Open Government, the MacArthur Research Network on Opening Governance, the Effective Institutions Platform, and other research networks.
- Strengthen capacity in vulnerable countries for research on peaceful, just and inclusive societies.
Delivery of the SDG targets for peaceful, just and inclusive societies requires the mobilization of finance from all sources: national and international, public and private.

The case for investment in SDG16+ must be strengthened, with a particular focus on the needs of the most vulnerable countries.

We have growing evidence of the costs of failing to prevent violence, invest in good governance and the rule of law, or to tackle exclusion and inequality.

The costs of inaction can be counted in terms of lives lost and damaged, economic costs, and diminished investment across all Sustainable Development Goals.

- The global cost of violence is estimated at $9.5 trillion, or over 11% of global GDP.
- Child marriage will lead to losses in welfare of over $500 billion in 2030, according to recent research published by the Economics of Child Marriage project.
- The cost of bribery is estimated at $1.5-2 trillion, or around 2% of GDP, with the International Monetary Fund finding much larger economic and social costs when all forms of corruption are taken into account.

In fewer cases, however, do we have a clear idea of the costs of delivering the SDG16+ targets:

- Birth registration. The costs of scaling up civil registration systems in 73 countries is estimated at $3.82 billion (costs for India and China are not available). The international funding gap is estimated at $2 billion per year.
- Violence against children. The Global Partnership to End Violence Against Children has developed a model for estimating the costs of implementing the INSPIRE strategies and this is being applied in its pathfinder countries.

- Access to justice. Basic legal services could be scaled up to cover a community at an annual cost of $0.1-0.3 per capita in non-OECD countries, and $3-6 per capita in OECD countries, although this modest cost is unlikely to be affordable in poorer countries without alternative sources of finance.

Financing for delivering the SDG16+ targets is inadequate:

- According to the World Health Organization, “violence prevention has yet to attract political and financial support commensurate with the scale and severity of the problem.”
- Donors spend only $0.65 per child each year on ending violence against children, or 0.6% of total official development assistance (ODA).
- According to the OECD, aid to the most vulnerable countries is mostly allocated to ‘fire-fighting’ rather than to longer-term prevention. In these countries, only 4% of ODA is allocated to legitimate politics, 3% to access to justice, and 1.4% to establishing and strengthening people’s security.

In order to fill the financing gap, governments must re-allocate resources from crisis response to the prevention of violence, while increasing investments in justice and inclusion, and reducing resources lost to corruption and illicit flows.

Improved governance will increase the efficiency with which resources are spent for all SDGs, while strengthening domestic resource mobilization.

Given the ambition of the SDG16+ targets, a case for investment is needed to mobilize finance from multiple additional sources, including international public finance, the private sector, foundations, and innovative sources of finance.
Increase understanding of the costs of inaction and the benefits of action

- Strengthen estimates for the costs of violence and insecurity, injustice and exclusion, and weak governance, building on models such as the Economics of Child Marriage Project.
- Quantify benefits of investment in SDG16+ in terms of lives saved, improved health and education, increased opportunities, and enhanced economic growth.
- Bring estimates together in a format that is tailored to the needs of finance ministers and other decision makers, drawing on models from other sectors such as the Stern Review on the Economics of Climate Change or the investment framework for reaching the global nutrition targets.

Develop a case for investment to implement the catalytic actions identified in this roadmap

- Develop the investment case for catalytic actions for which there is consensus on the evidence-based strategies for implementation (for example, the INSPIRE strategies for ending violence against children).
- Cost the implementation of these strategies in countries with different levels of resources (as has been done for birth registration in the Global Civil Registration and Vital Statistics: Scaling-up Investment Plan).
- Identify unit costs (cost per beneficiary) appropriate for countries with different levels of resources. Where possible, calculate the expected return on investment.

Increase investment in delivering the SDG targets for peaceful, just and inclusive societies

- Raise awareness of the scale of the financing gap for peaceful, just and inclusive societies, focusing on the need to substantially scale up investment in all forms of prevention and to increase resources for justice and inclusion.
- Use the roadmap to mobilize funders (without setting up a standalone fund), creating opportunities for them to come together to align strategies for financing different priorities within the roadmap.
- Explore opportunities for increasing funding from the private sector and foundations, and for using new and innovative forms of finance, working with the UN Global Compact’s Financial Innovation for the SDGs Action Platform and other bodies.
- Present a plan for scaling up investment in peaceful, just and inclusive societies to the High-level Political Forum in 2019, providing a platform for accelerating implementation in the 2020s.
SDG16+ offers opportunities for new types of learning and exchange, highlighting innovation wherever it is found and strengthening policy and professional networks.

Intensified cooperation between pathfinder countries will encourage the sharing of successes and best practice.

We will bring lessons learned to the High-level Political Forum and to other international and regional meetings, in line with the HLPF’s remit to provide a dynamic platform for exploring new and emerging challenges.

Governments, local authorities, businesses, civil society, academia, and foundations all have a contribution to make to learning and exchange, while international and regional organizations, and multi-stakeholder partnerships and networks provide a platform to mobilize and share knowledge and expertise.

We will promote cooperation between partnerships and networks, given the need for greater integration between the targets for peace, justice and inclusion.

Knowledge platforms and hubs will provide policymakers with information in a format that improves decision making and builds the case for action.

The Pathfinders will act as a convener for a small number of ‘grand challenges’ that will set a policy and learning agenda, while raising ambition and increasing political will.

Each challenge will act as a focus for learning in 2017 and 2018, helping us continue to develop the vision that underpins the roadmap.

- How can we significantly reduce all forms of violence everywhere?
  SDG16.1 promises to achieve a quantified reduction in all forms of violence. We will bring together all disciplines and sectors to explore how this grand challenge can be delivered and financed, creating an agenda for action for policymakers from all countries.

- How can we provide access to justice for all?
  The 2030 Agenda promises justice to the billions of people who are currently deprived of the protection of law. Through this challenge, we will build consensus on the strategies for providing universal access to legal services and increasing legal empowerment.

- A new agenda for social, economic and political inclusion.
  SDG16+ includes targets for social, economic and political inclusion (10.2, 16.7), for women’s participation and leadership (5.5), and for public access to information (16.10). Work in this area will respond to the crisis of exclusion and identify models for meaningful participation. It will make recommendations on how to protect civic space and to ensure that all parts of society can play a full role in sustainable development.

The Global Alliance for Reporting Progress on Promoting Peaceful, Just and Inclusive Societies

The Alliance brings together Member States, civil society, and the private sector to support effective and meaningful reporting on the achievement of peaceful, just, and inclusive societies – taking into account different national realities, capacities and levels of development, and respecting national policies and priorities. It is focused, in particular, on the opportunity for effective reporting at the High-level Political Forum in 2019.
Intensify cooperation between pathfinder countries, highlighting successes and leadership

- Use the SDG16+ roadmap to inform the development of strategies and plans for peace, justice and inclusion at national, regional and global levels.
- Focus on countries at the greatest risk of being left behind, with the aim of supporting implementation in these countries, and increasing learning about how to accelerate progress when capacity and finance is constrained.
- Document innovative models and national best practice in pathfinder countries, strengthening partnerships between countries and increasing north-south, south-south, and south-north learning.

Strengthen universal networks and platforms for learning

- Ensure that official data platforms, such as the Global SDG Indicators Database, and complementary platforms, such as the SDG16 Data Initiative, are used to track and encourage progress on the SDG16 targets.
- Use existing and new knowledge platforms, such as the Global Knowledge Platform to End Violence against Women or the Alliance 8.7 Knowledge Platform, to increase the accessibility of evidence on peaceful, just and inclusive societies.
- Explore the potential for new approaches to synthesizing and communicating knowledge and evidence for policymakers and funders in order to translate evidence into action.
- Mobilize professional networks that have the greatest scope to accelerate progress on peaceful, just and inclusive societies.

Report progress and communicate success in fostering peaceful, just and inclusive societies

- Through the Global Alliance for Reporting Progress on Promoting Peaceful, Just and Inclusive Societies, strengthen reporting on the SDG16+ targets.
- Increase the number of countries submitting voluntary reports to the High-level Political Forum, especially in 2019 when the forum will have “empowering people and ensuring inclusiveness and equality” as its overarching theme.
- Increase the number of SDG16+ partnerships showcased at the Partnership Exchange special event in 2019 and use the SDG Business Forum in that year to focus on SDG16+ and the private sector.
- Contribute to the quadrennial Global Sustainable Development Report in 2019, while maximizing the impact of other major international reports on peace, justice and inclusion.
- Support the 16+ Forum as the global gathering for the community working on peace, justice and inclusion, and use other major forums and events to build global debate on the implementation of the targets for peaceful, just and inclusive societies.

Use high-profile ‘grand challenges’ to increase ambition and as a focus for learning

- Build on existing initiatives and campaigns to catalyze a debate on how to achieve a significant and quantified reduction in all forms of violence.
- Convene a Task Force to explore delivery and financing strategies for providing access to justice for all.
- Form a Commission on social, economic and political inclusion.
Communication, advocacy and movement-building

Effective advocacy and communications will build the movement to implement SDG16+, but also strengthen the norms and values that underpin peace, justice and inclusion.

Political leadership is needed to make the case that violence can be prevented and the tide of polarization, distrust and injustice can be reversed.

Leaders from all sectors must commit to working together and to the policies, programs and investments needed to turn the ambition of SDG16+ into reality.

The universality of the 2030 Agenda offers an opportunity to build a multi-stakeholder movement for peace, justice and inclusion:

- We can harness existing campaigns to end violence against women, violence against children, child labor, child marriage, female genital mutilation, and modern slavery.
- New campaigns can draw on a growing appetite for justice, rights, and more inclusive societies.
- Action is also needed to engage both women and men in changing harmful gender norms, and in tackling the values that tolerate or encourage violence and abuse.
- All campaigns must respond to national and local realities, and be implemented in ways that allow for full participation of those most affected by violence, injustice, and exclusion.

The ‘grand challenges’ described under the learning and exchange enabler will provide a focus for advocacy and movement-building. They will make the case for greater ambition and will inspire people across the world to work together to deliver the promise of the 2030 Agenda.

Professionals with skills in advocacy, communications and network building are needed to guide the movement for peaceful, just and inclusive societies.

Children and young people must play a central role in advocacy and campaigning, in line with the commitment that the Sustainable Development Goals will provide them with a platform to work together for a better world.

Both women and men have an important role to play in violence prevention and in challenging the attitudes and behaviors that undermine peaceful societies.

The movement for peace, justice and inclusion must also listen to and be guided by survivors of violence and injustice, and those who are furthest behind.
Increase political leadership for peace, justice and inclusion

- Use the roadmap to make the case for accelerated action on SDG16+, catalyzing a global debate about how all countries can achieve the targets.
- Develop a narrative for peace, justice and inclusion that focuses on solutions and the potential for positive change.
- Highlight the successes of SDG16+ pathfinders, demonstrating what can be achieved with the right policies and programs.
- Create a network of political champions for the delivery of SDG16+ and use high level events to build international support, while promoting the work of champions for peaceful, just and inclusive societies at national and local levels.
- Advocate for the investment needed to deliver peace, justice and inclusion, mobilizing additional finance from all sources.

A movement for peaceful societies

- Call on governments, international organizations, civil society and the private sector to work together to rapidly reduce violence.
- Increase the number of countries that have set targets for reducing homicides, and that are implementing policies and programs that target the most affected communities.
- Harness existing global and national campaigns that aim to end violence against women and against children.
- Build on and strengthen campaigns to end child marriage, female genital mutilation, child labor, the use of child soldiers, and modern slavery and human trafficking, and that protect the rights of migrants, refugees and those who have been internally displaced.

A movement for justice and inclusion

- Contribute to a campaign for access to justice that empowers people to understand and access their rights, supports those who deliver legal services in communities, and increases investment in justice from both national and international sources.
- Harness existing global and national campaigns that promote and protect human rights, or that tackle corruption, illicit flows, or other injustices.
- Empower people as agents of change and promote models for how societies can draw on the knowledge, insights and energies of their citizens.
- Protect and enhance space for engagement on building peace, justice and inclusion.

Strengthen the norms and values underpinning peaceful, just and inclusive societies

- Compile evidence and best practice on changing norms and values.
- Bring together professionals (behavioral science, social marketing, social media, etc.) to develop guidance for governments.
- Invest in the evaluation of interventions that aim to change norms and values.
The Way Forward
The Pathfinders for Peaceful, Just and Inclusive Societies will now form an action platform to take the roadmap forward.

We will use the roadmap to support national ambition, coherence, innovation, results, and reporting.

At international and regional levels, we will build on the roadmap to strengthen strategies, momentum, and political will.

We will also shape a global debate using the grand challenges on justice, inclusion, and violence prevention that are set out on page 51.

The Pathfinders will continue to grow, as governments and other partners make commitments to lead on the implementation of SDG16+. The group will work with, and support, partners from all sectors, in line with its role as a docking station.

Together, we will demonstrate that the 2030 Agenda targets for peaceful, just and inclusive societies can be delivered, providing a platform for scaling up implementation in the 2020s.
The Pathfinders for Peaceful, Just and Inclusive Societies came together to help turn the ambition of the Sustainable Development Goals into reality.

The group was founded to build momentum for delivery of the SDG16+ targets ahead of the High-level Political Forum in 2019, with the expectation that this will provide a platform for increasing ambition in the 2020s.

Following our launch in 2016, we have mapped trends, evidence, and partnerships for peace, justice and inclusion, and built consensus around the policies, strategies, and tools that will underpin successful implementation through the development of this roadmap.

The Pathfinders will now form an action platform to take the roadmap forward. The roadmap will help partners collaborate, while each partner will contribute to the shared vision and objectives based on its areas of comparative advantage (see page 59).

In 2018 and 2019, the Pathfinders will work towards three priorities (page 60).

First, we will support national delivery, using the roadmap to increase ambition, coherence, innovation and reporting.

As a result, more countries will set their own targets for peaceful, just and inclusive societies, and will make commitments to implement as part of their sustainable development strategies and plans.

An important objective is to ensure that the least developed and most vulnerable countries can participate fully in the Pathfinders group and are able effectively to implement SDG16+.

National implementation will be more cohesive, with strengthened links between peace, justice and inclusion, a cross-cutting focus on gender and rights, and greater links between SDG16+ and the rest of the 2030 Agenda.

We will also support learning and cooperation between pathfinders, documenting national lessons and best practices, and brokering relationships with relevant international organizations, global partnerships, and knowledge platforms.

The roadmap will support the work of the Global Alliance to strengthen reporting at the High-level Political Forums in 2018 and 2019, and the 16+ Forum, which provides a forum for showcasing innovation, and success stories.

The second priority is to build on the roadmap to strengthen strategies and momentum at international and regional levels.

The Pathfinders will actively engage with international and regional organizations, civil society, the private sector, other global partnerships, research networks, foundations, and other partners.

We will build links both with those working on SDG16+ and those working on other parts of the 2030 Agenda.

Where appropriate, we will support international and regional partners as they deliver elements of the roadmap, increasing the proportion of SDG16+ targets covered by international and regional delivery and financing strategies.

We will aim to increase the number of other sectors that are addressing the obstacles to achievement of their SDGs posed by violence, insecurity, injustice, exclusion, and weak governance.

The roadmap is a living document, and we will prepare a progress report in 2018 and an updated version in 2019.

The final priority is to use the three ‘grand challenges’ identified on page 51 to build ambition and as a focus for learning.

Each grand challenge will provide new opportunities for leadership, and will strengthen partnerships for peace, justice, and inclusion.

Together, the three challenges will increase the willingness of countries to develop and finance innovative approaches to turning the ambition of SDG16+ into reality.

The Pathfinders will continue to be an open and inclusive group, consulting widely on its objectives and working with all partners who are committed to implementation of the SDG16+ targets.

The Pathfinders will act as a platform for action

1. National delivery
   Increase national ambition, coherence, innovation, and reporting

   A growing number of pathfinder countries fulfill commitments to implement SDG16+

2. International delivery
   Strengthen strategies and momentum at international and regional levels

   International and regional partners increase support for delivery of elements of the roadmap

3. Grand challenges
   Use three ‘grand challenges’ to build ambition and as a focus for learning

   Increased political will and strengthened strategies for justice, inclusion and violence prevention

4 ★ Increase justice and legal empowerment

Protection of law: In 2008, the Commission on the Legal Empowerment of the Poor found that 4 billion people do not enjoy access to justice and are left “on the outside looking in, unable to count on the law’s protection and unable to enter national, let alone global markets.” This number is an estimate, based on a relatively small number of studies. This emphasizes the need for better data on what people want and get from the justice system: Commission on Legal Empowerment of the Poor and United Nations Development Programme (2008), Making the Law Work for Everyone - Volume 1: Report of the Commission on Legal Empowerment of the Poor.
